DIALOGUE

UNCLE SAM & BROTHER JONATHAN. {14}

By DANIEL DE LEON

BROTHER JONATHAN—It looks as though the Socialist Workmen's International Congress at Brussels followed strictly upon the lines of Karl Marx.

UNCLE SAM—So they did, and so they do.

B.J.—But Prof. Andrews said at the School of Applied Ethics, that Rodbertus, and not Marx, was the guiding light of socialists.

U.S.—You should never forget, Brother Jonathan, that E. Benjamin Andrews is a professor of political economy and a D.D. and LL.D. to boot.

B.J.—Oh, I see.
